The Empower@Scale Platform
The Empower@scale project

The Gender Justice is non-negotiable. The interests of women as well as men are equally addressed when working towards gender justice. Women's human rights as established in the UN convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) are non-negotiable, with men as partners in pursuit of social justice. Equal rights are not a favour or a gift: everyone is born equal.

LS) provides a practical approach to address unequal gender and power relations, and mobilise people to empower themselves. The methodology was developed by Linda Mayoux with local organisations in several countries, including Uganda, building on the Participatory Action Learning System (PALS). It was further developed and adapted by many individuals and organisations. The question "how can we make sure we do it right?" keeps coming back amongst practitioners and organisations that support GALS.

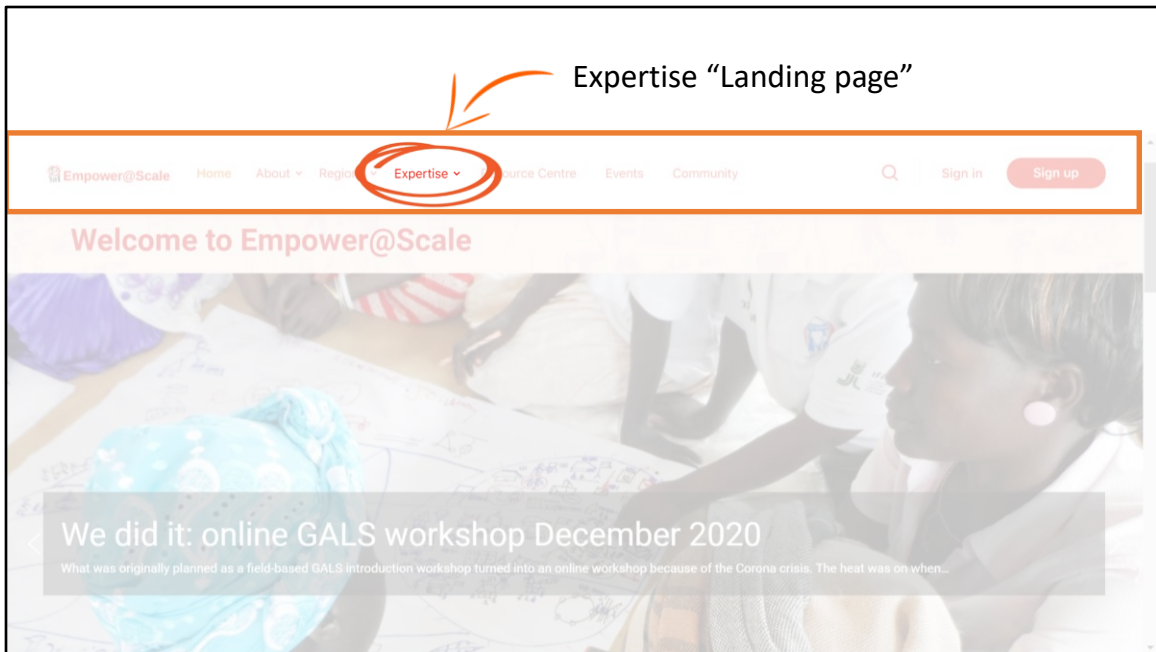

Partners of the Empower@scale initiative support 7 "must have" key principles to help us "to do it right" and we invite anyone who wants to use the GALS methodology to support and build on these as well. The 7 key principles aim to guide anyone who wants to join the movement towards gender justice and sustainable livelihoods through scaling up the use of GALS. Below, the principles are summarised as "our values". You can find the detailed version here.

Universal values of GALS can be found here: gender, participation, leadership.
